

Three Pieces
for Clarinet

Tom Flaherty

Performance notes

Multiphonics should be allowed to accumulate gradually when necessary. Tempo should be adjusted accordingly

Accidentals apply only to the notes they immediately precede and any immediately repeating notes in the same octave. Naturals are occasionally used as reminders

Program Notes

"Fantasy", the first of these Three Pieces for Clarinet, is comprised primarily of a wide ranging opening gesture and continuous elaborations which evaporate into a quiet multiphonic chorale at the center of the piece. The variations on the opening gesture pick up where they left off, becoming more fragmented and energetic, and finally return to the initial intervals plus a few octaves.

"Scherzo" is a light dancelike movement which builds in intensity to a point where the usual clarinet texture gives way to raucous squawking.

The last movement is a meditation on aspects of the first two.
